Apply Page Layouts
Give your templates structure. 2 column, 3 column – the choice is yours

Intuitive Variables
Take the work out of creating content with variables that are easy for anyone to use

Add Labels
Gently enforce labeling of Confluence pages by adding labels to your templates

Insert Task Lists
Encourage users to create tasks to ensure work actually gets done

@Mention Users
Confluence will automatically notify mentioned users when a page is created from a template so you don't have to

Custom Highlighting
Highlight important information with custom background colors for cells and rows.

Column Sorting
Quickly sort columns for a more insightful view of your data.

Feature Tracking

Feature	Priority	Status
Game Animations	1) High	In Progress
Hidden Levels	2) Medium
Nerd Graphics	3) Low

Auto-notify New Users

No more sending manual emails to new users. Let Confluence do the work for you.

The screenshot shows the 'Users' management interface in Confluence. At the top, there's a 'Users' header with a blue 'X' icon. Below it are four tabs: 'List Users', 'Add Users' (which is active), 'Invite Users', and 'User Signup Options'. The 'Add a User' section contains several input fields: 'Username' (with 'ryenolds' entered and a note 'Usernames must be lower case.'), 'Full Name' (with 'Ryan Reynolds'), 'Password' (with masked characters), 'Confirm Password' (with masked characters), and 'Email' (with 'rreynolds@angrynerds.com'). At the bottom of the form is a 'Create' button. A dashed arrow points from the text 'Let Confluence do the work for you.' to a checkbox labeled 'Send an email to the user you have just created, which will allow them to set up their password.' which is checked.
