Confluence,

The screenshot shows a Teams meeting window with a presentation slide titled "How We Define Team Communication" and a comment box from Harvey Jennings.

The presentation slide is titled "How We Define Team Communication" and features a diagram. The diagram shows a central circle labeled "Email" with lines connecting it to "Person" and "Team" nodes. Below the diagram, there is text explaining the role of team communication. The slide also includes a navigation bar at the bottom with "INTRO" and "Show all files".

The comment box, titled "Harvey Jennings", contains the following text:

Ryan Lee - These lines are covering the word 'email'. Needs to be cleaned up.

Also this diagram isn't exactly what we outlined on Product Strategy: Team Communication in Space

How We Define Team Communication

Before Team Comm.

```
graph TD
    Person1[Person] --> Email1[Email]
    Person1 --> ConsumerM[Consumer M]
    Email1 --> Person2[Person]
    Email1 --> Team1[Team]
    Email1 --> Software1[Software]
    ConsumerM --> Person3[Person]
```

After Team Comm.

```
graph TD
    Person4[Person] --> Email2[Email]
    Email2 --> Person5[Person]
    Email2 --> Team2[Team]
```

Team comm replaces many of the action oriented emails a person would have sent and makes email more of a one way comm. to have bi-directional comm with your software and team. It completely replaces you need for consumer M and replaces the need for a team.
